

Articulation Agreements

Appalachian School of Law has entered into what are known as “Articulation Agreements” with some undergraduate institutions within its region to give preferential admission to their graduates as well as to some highly successful students in their final year of undergraduate education. These colleges include Berea College, Bluefield College, Ferrum College, and the University of Virginia at Wise.